Council Member Phillips gave the invocation, and the Pledge of Allegiance was recited.

3. PUBLIC COMMENTS

Charles Hodges – Turkey Trot – Because of new agenda posting rules, we didn't get approval on agenda, but he wants to make sure park pedestrian trail is clear of debris. They won't be closing streets except N. Church and Lockhart for the finish. They are also requesting barricades.

Gerald Nobles – update on transmission line. They moved the hearing to March. They said to go back to Brady City Council and tell them thank you. Brady said it would affect the city and it got their attention. They're going to keep fighting.

Eddie Sayles – said he has been around fire / EMS for a long time and seen chiefs come and go. The last three chiefs came from big cities and had big ideas but they had no clue how to run a small municipal fire / EMS. We don't have endless amounts of money. At any given time, the chief has to be out working among the crews. That hasn't happened much with the last two chiefs. They want to be administrative chiefs. Brady is too small to have an administrative chief. The current interim has grown up in this department. He understands the department and the city and understands the politics. It's time we got back to the basics and put in a chief that knows our community and the people in our community. It's a great idea to put the current interim chief over both fire and EMS. This young gentleman will do very well.

Outsourcing preventative maintenance services for standby power generator units is the best practice method for ensuring long life of this type of equipment. City staff initiated two (2) public offerings for this service over the course of several weeks. The first offer was a competitive proposal method, which returned no responses. This prompted staff to initiate a competitive bid packet, and a single bid was received on November 6th from GenServe, LLC, an Austin, Texas based company. As shown in the bid tabulation exhibit, the preventative maintenance service is established as a 5-year service program. The first (1st) year charge is $14,617.00 for the seven (7) generator units. GenServe, LLC provided appropriate client references that were checked and found to have satisfactory performance for on-site power generator preventative maintenance services.

RECOMMENDED ACTION:

City staff recommends City Council award the 2025-Multi-year Contract for Specialty Services (generator preventative maintenance) to GenServe, LLC, Austin, Texas in the amount of $14,617.00.
